The Purpose and Goal of Classical Athletics

Key lessons taught by athletics include the competitive mindset, mental toughness, physical training, conflict management, goal setting, team building, accountability, and overcoming failure. These skills are essential to the growth of an individual seeking success in a fallen world and keep us focused in reaching our full potential. Equipping students to face and overcome issues creates transformational experiences and the need for God.

- Attendance will be checked daily and there will be consequences for missing practices or games.
- Except for official school breaks and holidays, teams will practice. Breaks? Teams are expected to practice on teacher workdays.
- Students must be in school by 9:30am in order to practice or play that day. If a student is absent, they may not practice or play that day.
- Students will be responsible for school-issued uniforms and or equipment. Lost uniforms or equipment will result in a charge.
- Students will be tested on the first week of official practice to determine fitness.
- Additional assessments may be done during that testing period for speed, explosion, and strength for evaluation purposes.
- We may be looking at skill requirements but will give plenty of notice if those are adopted.
- Students will come prepared to each practice/game and give maximum effort.

The Standards and Assessments of Our Program

- Coaches will provide written evaluations about a student's skills, behavior, and role on the team. Beginning and end.
- Coaches will send out a weekly newsletter with schedules (game and practice), locations, information, and highlights. These will be sent out via email or posted in PARENT SQUARE.
- We are working on a “culture of words” that coaches will be responsible for implanting in their programs
- Teams will have a measurable team win goal stated in the preseason to track development.
- Teams will have a measurable team performance metric each year to track development.
- Coaches will have a zoom or in person parent meeting the week before the official season begins.
